

Neck guard

By Jennifer Moor | San Francisco Magazine | December 2, 2009

Courtney Moss and Gigi Mortimer, two dutiful hockey moms, were tired of freezing during their kids' 6 AM practice sessions in Central Park.

Those winter mornings spent warming the bench prompted Moss and Mortimer to create Glamourpuss NYC and the company's newest elegant accessory. They designed the fur funnel ($198), a continuous neck scarf made out of rex rabbit fur and knit with elastic so it stretches over the head. It's sold in 10 colors designed to compliment skin tones and brighten even the palest complexions. Whether keeping necks warm in the carpool lane, under the mistletoe at a holiday party, or atop Mt. Tamalpais, this scarf is making a serious power play as the chicest stocking stuffer.

Available at Tory Burch, 50 Maiden Lane, 415.398.1525.